Free and open source alternatives As with most graphic design software, Photoshop is available for download or purchase. However, for many designers, particularly the budget-conscious, the availability of alternative programs provides a solution to the financial strain of software ownership. Free and open-source software is available, but not all that is free is perfect. Open source programs like Corel Photo Paint or Paint.NET can also hold their own against paid alternatives. It's up to you to decide what is right for you, and if you've already invested in Photoshop, you may not want to go to an alternative. Photoshop is not your only option. Even if you purchase a desktop version of Photoshop, several Internet sites, including online photo hosts, offer free or low-cost photo editing and enhancing services to enable you to create, share, and display online. With this free, low-tech solution, you can easily get an online photo account and free online photo sharing. With many of these services, you can even create animated GIFs and import and edit audio clips. ## Editing Workspaces Before you dive into the various keyboard shortcuts you can use to edit an image in Photoshop, you first need to decide what your editing workspace should look like. Table 2-4 shows the various tool and workspace styles that are available. As a general rule of thumb, you need to be conscious of which of the toolbox options you use often because you need to be aware of the steps involved with operating the tool. This means that if you're working with Layer Masks, the more often you use that tool, the quicker you'll discover all the shortcuts available. Therefore, if you work with the Clone Stamp often, you should already know how to make the most of that tool. Table 2-4

The move is sparking protests as prospective bidders are given just two hours to look at social properties. And on Saturday, the Metropolitan Police announced its decision to delay arrests and evictions in a bid to “avoid a disruption to the community”. Now it has been revealed its lack of action will be on the city’s busy shopping parade as police have ordered all potential enforcement officers to work on the 27th. Now Sinn Fein are planning a peaceful protest in Northern Ireland’s capital to highlight the decision which could see rioting in the area. (Image: PA) (Image: PA) Read more: Shadow Policing Minister Louise Haigh told the BBC News NI: “The decision to allow people to stay puts people at real risk of violence. “It appears the police do not want to arrest people because they fear riots will break out. This is an outrageous approach and is undermining the legitimate concerns of those facing evictions and displacements. “I believe the police have failed in this decision. I think the police have got this wrong. There are those who will be emboldened to violence.” Sinn Fein has called a protest in the city centre tomorrow afternoon against what it has called the “police tactics”. (Image: PA) Read more: The party says anyone entering the city centre faces a potential attack. The Northern Irish Police Federation has said the decision is “extremely disappointing” and is “an act of surrender”. The police chiefs have sought to quell fears about the impact of the order with the explanation being the deployment is being done in the manner as “social distancing” during the coronavirus pandemic. But the scheme hasn’t been adhered to by public housing provider Orchard, and they say they cannot keep their contracts up and running. Talking about Ministry August 22, 2019 THIS WEEK: We talk about the concept of “talking about ministry,” and how it relates to the servant nature of Jesus. This week’s words are: In a conversation with me, a student shared a sad story about the problem of gossip in her church and asked if I knew of any answers to the problem. My first thought was, “Lord, please bless her!” When I considered the problem, I remembered that my Bible Study Leader mentioned the phrase “talking about ministry” in an answer to a question that I had asked her. While considering my answer to the student, I remembered that the concept comes to us from 2 Corinthians 1:11-12, “...and being perfected in love, he became the minister of God to the Father, that we should be holy and blameless before him, blameless before our God and Father when the master of the house has eaten from the house of us.” 2 Corinthians 1:11-12 The passage is saying that in order to be perfected in love, the one who is perfected, Paul, is sent to share this perfected love with us. Perfected love comes from Jesus and is revealed in his sacrifice on the cross. This is an idea that Jesus himself has shared with us: “I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me.” John 14:6. If you follow Jesus’s teaching and walk in the light of the Gospel, he will reveal to you what it means to have perfected love. We get the idea of “talking about ministry” from James, which says, “My dear brothers, take note of this: Everyone should be quick to listen, slow to speak and slow to become angry, for man’s anger does not bring about the righteous life that God desires.” James 1:19-20 I would encourage you to be very “slow” to get angry because anger is a hidden and deadly sin in God’s eyes. A healthy anger or even the anger of a righteous man brings about the righteous life God wants to see. Like Paul, we are all just blessed when we know that we are perfected in love for the purpose of being the minister of that love. What that means is that if we are to be the atonement for our sins and
